More clinical hours

They can be a bit friendly
Approach should be different

1.
Everything in my college is absolutely fine,
But but some of the teachers are feared very much so there occurs a communication gap between student n teacher leaving some of the doubts left uncleared.

Everything is satisfactory.

Not being partial Friendly environment
Trust on students

College teachers should also include clinical approach while teaching the subjects it should not be always therotical

Interaction sports mentorship

A good deal of focus should be placed on the development of the personality of the student as a doctor rather than just his/her job performance. (For this, programs on ethics and etiquette should be conducted in the initial days of the course, not in internship; it's almost invalid at such a point.)

Partiality should be banned, or at least, it should not be practiced by medical professionals. It's hurts. Also, it destroys the country's future.

Western formal attire on a doctor never killed a patient, this is an observation that needed mention.

They should provide enough time to self study for that students need sufficient break or off from institute prior to any exam

Teachers should be more friendly rather than strict.

more practical hours

Mic while teaching

Demo during practicals should be louder
